Once an old industrial site, this former “Can” factory has been transformed into loft apartments, office spaces and affordable housing. A notable feature of the revitalization of Cannery Square at Charles Village was the reclamation of on-site materials which were repurposed into elements of the new landscape.

Working side by side with Seawall Development Corporation and Hamel Builders, E-Landscape was responsible for reclaiming much of the material used for this project, which was later incorporated into several scenic elements of the landscape. The scope also included preparation of over 1,200 square feet of bed area and the installation of a moss garden - a unique design element to the property.

Cannery Square’s upscale design and environmentally friendly revitalization make it stand out amongst other affordable residential developments.
